Remedial Courses	Instructional courses designed for students deficient in the general competencies necessary for a regular postsecondary curriculum and educational setting. These courses do not award college credit but students may use financial aid to pay for these courses.
Retention	Defined as continued enrollment (or degree/certificate completion) within the higher education institution in the fall semesters of a student's first and second year.
Retention Rate	A measure of the rate at which students persist in their education program at an institution, expressed as a percentage. For two-year institutions this is the percentage of first-time degree/certificate-seeking students from the previous fall who either re-enrolled or successfully completed their program by the current fall.
Structured Scheduling	Help working students balance jobs and school by using structured scheduling of classes to add predictability to their busy lives – doing so enables many more students to attend college full-time, shorting their time to completion. Essential components of structured schedules include: Full-time, Monday – Friday; Predictable schedule that is constant throughout (block scheduling), whole program choice, not individual courses, student cohorts; and mandatory attendance.
